PROMINENT MEN DIE SUNDAY

Captain Long Nationally Famous for his Battlefield Lecture. Ex-Sheriff Colestock Dies Before Doctor Comes. Table Rock Man Dies.

A chapter in the history of Gettysburg Battlefield was brought to a close at 11.15 Sunday night by the death of Captain James T. Long. For a period of twenty years tourists have associated the name of Captain Long with that of the world's most famous battle ground. The great majority were not fortunate enough to secure his service. Most of them studied the field from the text of his "Red Book" and none left without a knowledge of him after having been confined to his bed by indigestion and Bright's disease for several weeks his death was directly caused by the bursting of a blood vessel. He fought to the end in his characteristic manner to hold his own life, as he fought years before to save lives of others but the hand of destiny closed the active career as the Sabbath drew to an end.

Captain Long was 68 years, 7 months and 26 days old. He was born near Little Britain, Lancaster county, the son of Robert H. and Sarah (McDowell) Long. His early education was acquired in the public schools and at Union Academy, near his home.

He had barely completed a course here when the Civil War broke out and like many other patriotic men he did not hesitate taking up arms for the defense of his flag. In June, 1861, he donned the uniform of a private in Co. B, 90th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. He quickly rose to the rank of corporal, but in November, 1861, after having been injured by falling timber, he contracted typhoid fever and for a time was incapacitated, as it was thought for further service. He was therefore discharged April 1862 on account of physical disability. The impulse to serve his country was however too great to remain inactive and after being rejected on account of disabilities several times he succeeded in enlisting in Company G, 21st Pennsylvania Cavalry in June 1862. Here his high qualities as a soldier were soon recognized and he was in turn promoted to the rank of sergeant major of the regiment before being mustered out of service. In February, 1864, he enlisted for the third time as a private in Company G, 21st Pennsylvania Cavalry for three years. He served until November, during which time he attained the rank of sergeant major and was then mustered out of service to be commissioned second lieutenant of Company A, 21st Pennsylvania Cavalry. From this position he was promoted to first lieutenant and for heroism in the last campaign was made Brevet Captain.

He was married in 1875, to Susan Greenawalt, of Chambersburg, and from this union five children survive. Three sons, Harry, of Harrisburg; William and Robert, of Gettysburg; and two daughters, Mrs. Harry Lackner and Miss Lillie Long. After having engaged in business at Chambersburg, Philadelphia and Montgomery, Alabama, Captain Long came to Gettysburg in 1884 as the traveling passenger agent for the Gettysburg and Harrisburg Railroad. In this capacity he made a study of and began lecturing on the battlefield. In 1886 he began to devote his entire time to his battlefield work and in 1891 published the now famous "Capt Long's Red Book," descriptive of the battle.

Captain Long was a member of the Loyal Legion of Honor, Gettysburg Post No. 9, Grand Army of the Republic, Good Samaritan Lodge F. A. M. No. 336, Gettysburg Lodge No. 145 B. P. O. E., Fame Lodge No. 778 I. O. O. F., of Philadelphia and a number of other honorary and fraternal orders.

Funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

GEORGE L. COLESTOCK

Ex-Sheriff George L. Colestock, of Adams county, died suddenly at his home in Mt. Pleasant township, Monday morning at seven o'clock, aged 63 years.

Mr. Colestock was apparently in the best of health, he arose at an early hour this morning, and was attending to his duties about the farm. He had just returned from the barn with the milk, when he was taken ill and died a few hours later, before the doctor arrived.

Sheriff Colestock lived at Abbottstown, prior to his election as Sheriff of Adams County and at the expiration of his term of office, moved to his farm in Mount Pleasant township.

The following members of the family survive, Mrs. George L. Colestock, wife of the deceased; Mrs. Keller, of New York, a sister; and nine children, M. G. Colestock, and Mrs. J. C. Myers, of New Oxford; John and Charles Colestock of Gettysburg; Continued on last page

SUNDAY AT THE CHAUTAUQUA

Big Attendance at Morning, Afternoon and Evening Sessions. Educational Movement Grows More Popular Every Day.

Adams County's first Chautauqua is now in full swing and the pendulum which controls this vast educational movement is vibrating with increased velocity as each feature of the drama is enacted. A great amount of the energy which propels this pendulum is liberated from a human galvanic battery in the form of Dr. John G. Scorer. He was well named when the appellation of "Mirthful Philosopher" was affixed to him, and though often playing in a serious role, his natural adaptability for comedy is hard to conceal.

The principal feature of Saturday's evening program was the lecture of Dr. Lamar on "Dixie Before and During the War." Dr. Lamar is from one of the most distinguished families in the South. His father, Col. Thomas G. Lamar owned about 10,000 acres of cotton land and had control over nearly 700 negro slaves.

Dr. A. W. Lamar was born in one of the typical old log cabins of South Carolina in 1847. After his father had established himself in the cotton industry, prosperity beamed upon the family and the household took up their residence in the Mansion house. They lived in grandeur until the beginning of the Civil War, when misfortune entered the family circle, and scenes of disaster came in rapid succession. Colonel Lamar had lost his life in defense of the Southern cause, and the junior members of the family, the sons of Grey, took up the fight in defense of their homes.

Dr. Lamar pictures the young Confederate soldier, clad in his smart looking uniform, with colored stripes and military trappings, as he takes leave of the home folks. Standing before the large Mansion house in the midst of his family with the household servants and slaves assembled, the mother invokes a parting blessing upon her son. He is off to the War, and the last thing he sees as he looks back along the shaded avenue of palmetto trees is "black mammy" his negro nurse standing in the rail lamenting the departure of her boy.

The comic hunt as depicted by Dr. Lamar, is presented in a lively, and amusing manner. The scenes are laid in a pine forest of South Carolina and nothing is lacking in detail from the beginning of the hunt until the catch is made by the hounds.

Dr. Lamar in closing, compared the Southern Negro of the past with the Negro of today. He said "at the close of the war the South turned over to the government upwards of 4,000,000, of the best educated Negroes that the United States has ever seen."

Those who have not heard Dr. Lamar will have one more opportunity to hear this polished Southern gentleman in his address this evening on "Dixie Since the War."

Many people of town spent the entire Sunday at the Chautauqua grounds. In the afternoon Dr. Robert Forbes, spoke on, "Mistakes of the Devil and Some Other People." Dr. Forbes' argument is very pointed, and each remark is driven home in an expressive and determined manner.

The evening program was a musical treat. Opening with a sacred concert by a trained choir of 100 voices. Vocal solos by Miss Lillian Ring, Miss Ruth Clutz and Miss Haus were well rendered. The choir was directed by L. L. Taylor, Mark K. Eckert, accompanist.

At eight o'clock the Ionic Ladies Concert Company accompanied by Prof. Borschein of Peabody Institute, Baltimore, were introduced. The Company is an "All Star" attraction and won the approval of the audience, Miss Olga Von Hartz, the accomplished violinist ranks among the headliners and was very liberal with her selections. Miss Hazel Knox Borschein, manager of the company, made a lasting impression on the audience, by her readings and soprano solos. Miss Borschein's pleasing personality speaks well for the future of this young artist.

The following program will be rendered Monday and Tuesday:

ANNUAL MEETING OF GRADUATES

Alumni and Teachers from all Parts of Adams County will hold Picnic and Reunion. To meet at Gettysburg Tuesday Afternoon.

During the administration of Superintendent Thoman, of the Adams County Public Schools, a movement was started for the organization of an alumni association, consisting of graduates from the public schools throughout the county. Far back in the early history of the schools the Boards did not grant certificates of graduation to the scholars on completion of the eight years' prescribed course. One might graduate from "The Little Red School House on the Hill," and no record was made of it, his accomplishment was soon forgotten and nothing remained as evidence.

Time has brought about a marked change in the curriculum. On graduation from the country schools the scholar is eligible to appear for examination before the County Superintendent and on successfully passing the examination, the scholar is given a certificate of graduation and becomes a member of the Adams County Alumni Association. Superintendent Roth has done much in the last few years to perfect this system.

The Association in former years has held its annual reunion at Round Top. This year they will meet on Tuesday afternoon in the Chautauqua tent on Baltimore street, as guests of the Chautauqua. The membership has reached nearly 500, many of whom have since completed courses in other schools and colleges and have returned to teach in Adams County Schools.

SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION

A Sabbath School convention was held at Cashtown August 17. Fourteen schools were represented out of twenty one. Both afternoon and evening sessions were well attended. Music of the afternoon was rendered by the choir.

Devotional exercises by Rev. Koser; Address of Welcome by Rev. Stonebraker, which was responded to by Rev. Mr. Koser; Elementary Sunday School Work, Mervin Wintrobe. Mr. Wintrobe gave many good ideas as to carrying out the elementary work. Benefit of Home Department, Rev. Charles Dalzell. Stimulates interest in church and community. Rev. Mr. Dalzell succeeded in getting delegates to try to organize departments in their schools.

Evening session opened at 7.30. Music was furnished by Arendtsville Glee Club. Prof. Sanders had in charge the devotional exercises. Mr. Wintrobe further discussed elementary work urging the organizing of Cradle Rolls. Mr. Barr discussed the organizing and work of Adult Bible Class. Prof. C. F. Sanders, of Gettysburg College, very ably discussed the topic, "Preparation for Service." The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, E. Cecil Stover; vice presidents, John Bushey, Charles Wolf; secretary, Miss Isabella Taylor; treasurer, Conrad Lower; superintendent of home department, George Kousse; superintendent of teachers training class, Rev. Mr. Koser; superintendent of organized Bible class, Hiram Lady; superintendent of elementary work, Raymond Deardorff.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Roland Biggs, a miller at Orrtanna, had a narrow escape Saturday while adjusting a new belt in his mill. While endeavoring to straighten the belt after the machinery was in motion his hand was caught between the belt and a pulley. He was being drawn along by the motion of the belt when the lacer gave way and released him with no further injury than a badly twisted arm. Mr. Biggs doubtless owes his life to the fact that the lacer did not hold.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS HERE

On Sunday morning a special train arrived over the Western Maryland Railroad with a party of officials of the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and Western Maryland Railroads. The visitors were conducted over the battlefield in automobiles and went to Pen Mar in the afternoon. F. M. Howell, General Passenger Agent of the Western Maryland, was with the party.

SOLD FAIRFIELD PROPERTY

MANY ROBBERIES IN LOWER END

People Think an Organized Band of Thieves are at Work in McSherrystown and Vicinity. No Clues to Guilty Parties.

From the number of robberies in the vicinity of McSherrystown last week the only conclusion to be reached is that there is a well organized band of robbers operating in this vicinity. Twice have evidences of their visits been manifested but no clues as to the perpetrators could be found.

On Monday, last, about half a dozen houses in Parkville, along the Baltimore pike, were visited by the marauders and money and other articles taken from several of the houses. Last Friday night a robber, or band of robbers, operated in the vicinity of McSherrystown pike at Midway, but so far as known, did not visit a house on the main road.

At the home of John Wagaman the robbers entered the lower floor and took with them on their departure, a number of pieces of jewelry, including Mrs. Wagaman's wedding ring. At the home of Mrs. Matilda Little the thieves made a greater haul securing about $16 in money from the trousers' pocket of her son, Basil.

At six other places the robbers forced an entrance or made attempts and failed, but when the parties were interviewed they knew of nothing missing from the premises.

Judging from the appearance of the marks made by the hieves at the houses, they began at the home of William Hahn, along the road leading from the McSherrystown pike to Pennville, and wound up at the home of H. B. Goodfellow, corner Maple Avenue and Jackson street, where was found the chisel which was used to break into all the houses.

At the Hahn home Mrs. Hahn discovered the entrance had been gained through a window in the rear of the house which was still open. While it was evident that the robbers had searched the whole lower floor, nothing was found to be missing.

Next they visited the home of Augustus Small, two doors away, where they pried open the window strip and took out a screen, which was outside the window. A number of flowers pots, and jars, which were on the sill, were knocked to the floor and broken. Mrs. Small stated that nothing was missing.

At the home of John S. Grim, South street, the robbers attempted entrance at two windows in the rear but were balked by the lock on the window.

At the home of Emanuel Bowers, South street, the thief was discovered in the act of raising the window and was scared away. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Adams, parents of Mrs. Bowers, sleep on the first floor and during the night, Mrs. Adams, glancing toward the window, saw a hand trying to reach the spring. She called her husband, when the marauder took alarm and fled.

The thieves then transferred their operations to the other side of the pike and visited several houses along Jackson street. At the home of John T. Hook they pried open a shutter on the front porch but were unsuccessful in gaining entrance, the window being locked. On the opposite corner is the new home of John Wagaman, not yet fully completed, and here the robbers had easy access. They secured a number of pieces of jewelry, valued at about $25. The most valuable, because of its associations, was the wedding ring of Mrs. Wagaman. They also appropriated a ring and watch chain belonging to Mr. Wagaman and took his bank book, containing a lot of receipts and other papers.

The robbers then visited the home of Mrs. Matilda Little, where they gained entrance by prying open a side window. The side of the house also shows the marks of dirty shoes, where the thief propped himself in order to crawl inside. Two sons of Mrs. Little sleep in the same room on the second floor and the robber took from the room the trousers of her son Basil and secured the sum of $16 which was in one of the pockets.

The trousers were found the next morning on the first floor, where the robber had abandoned them after his search. Nothing else was missed from the premises. The thief departed through the front door.

The last place visited was the home of Harry B. Goodfellow, where the robbers threw away their chisel after failing to gain an entrance through a window on the front porch. They broke a catch on the shutter, in a desperate attempt to effect an entrance. Officers from Hanover and McSherrystown are working on the cases but have not yet gotten a clue to the guilty parties.

FOR SALE: a few of Arnolds strain Columbia Wyandottas cockerels, one Buff Orington.

SAGE TEA WILL DARKEN THE HAIR
Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed.
There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair, with wonderfully beneficial effect.
Nowadays we don't have to resort to old-time, tiresome methods of gathering the herbs and making the tea. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product.
Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy.
The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.
This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

HAS A REMARKABLE RECORD
The Canadian Reciprocity Past, Reapportionment and Campaign Publicity the Monuments to Four Months' Work at Washington.
Washington, Aug. 21.—When the curtain rings down on the special session of the Sixty-second congress at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, as has been practically determined, the following results will stand to the credit of the Democrats in the house and the senate.
Reciprocity with Canada, passed by the solid votes of the Democrats of the house, who were joined by a good number of Republicans, and passed by almost the solid Democratic vote of the senate with the aid of a sufficient number of regular Republicans out of deference to the wishes of President Taft; opposed only by Senators Bailey and Simmons on the Democratic side.
Reapportionment of congressional districts, increasing the house membership to 433. Passed, but with scattering Republican opposition.
Publicity campaign bill, being in effect a drastic corrupt practices act.
Framed by house Democrats and strengthened by progressive Democrats in the senate.
These three measures were signed by the president and permitted to become laws.
Revision of the wool schedule; framed in the house and modified in the senate; came out of conference so as to reduce the existing tariff on wool and wools about 33 1/3 percent. Vetted by president and failed to obtain the necessary two-thirds vote to pass over the veto.
Free list bill in the interest of the farmer and consumer generally; framed in the house and modified by senate Republicans so as to eliminate free meats and free breadstuffs.
Bailey alone of the senate Democrats voted with the Republicans to effect this elimination. Vetted by the president and failed to obtain the two-thirds vote necessary to pass it over the presidential veto.
Cotton revision bill, passed by Democratic house and modified in the senate by the Democrats; passed by Democratic votes, the regular Republican senators refraining from voting. The bill will go to the president as remodeled by the senate and will be vetted.
No attempt probably will be made to pass the measure over the veto.
Statehood and Conservation.
Statehood resolution admitting Arizona and New Mexico; vetoed by the president because of recall provision in Arizona constitution, failed to pass over veto. Reintroduced in both houses to conform with wishes of president by eliminating judiciary recall provision and passed by Democrats and insurgent Republicans in both houses. The resolution will be signed by the president.
Direct election of senators; passed overwhelmingly by the house; modified by Senator Bristow in a manner objectionable to Democrats, and failed to come out of conference committee, on which Vice President Sherman appointed senators who at heart are opposed to the measure.
Black Warrior power site bill; passed both houses; now in conference.
This bill presented to the Democratic majority of the house its first chance to apply the principles of conservation of resources, and in no uncertain way the house Democrats went on record by rather drastically restricting the grant, and by amending the bill so as to protect the consumer against extortionate rates.
The results of the four months' labors of the first congress since 1895, of which the house was controlled by Democrats and the senate jointly by Democrats and insurgent Republicans were gained by the house Democrats fighting out differences of views in caucuses and abiding by the decision of the majority. They originated all of the measures passed by the two houses this session, and as a testimonial to the fairness and the wisdom of the Democratic legislation of the house, stands the fact that independent Republicans in varying numbers, from thirty on cotton revision to more than twice that number on reciprocity, voted for the legislation which the Democrats put forward. In the senate the Democrats worked with greater unanimity than for many years past, due largely to the advent of a number of progressive Democratic senators, as the result of the recent Democratic landslide in former Republican states. With the exception of the minor defection against the Democratic program led by Senator Bailey on reciprocity and against free meats and flour, the senate Democrats worked together with great unanimity.

LABOR LEADERS FILE PLEAS Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison Attack Contempt Ruling.
Washington, Aug. 21.—Samuel Gompers, president; John Mitchell, vice president, and Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, filed sworn answers to the rule in contempt issued against them by Justice Wright, of the district supreme court.
Continuing to rely on their contention that under the constitution they may not be required to disclose their defense before trial or to bear witness against themselves, the three labor leaders content themselves with making oath to the formal pleas made before Justice Wright last month.
The sworn pleas are four in number. The first is a general denial of the charges in a plea of not guilty.
The statute of limitation forms the basis of the second plea. In the third plea the court is accused of delay in commencing action, and by the fourth plea the claim is made that the delay has been so unreasonable that the accused should not be called upon to answer the charges.

GIRL SWIMS ACROSS FRISCO GOLDEN GATE
Makes Mile and a Quarter In Hour and 28 Minutes.
San Francisco, Aug. 21.—Miss Hazel Laurenson, fifteen years old, a graduate of the University of California, is the first woman who has ever swam across Golden Gate.
With two other women swimmers she made arrangements to attempt the feat, but finally decided to try it alone. She made the distance across Golden Gate, a mile and a quarter, in one hour and twenty-eight minutes.
She had a very hard time during the last four hundred yards, as the tide began to set against her and her head often went under the breakers.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 21.—Evidence in the form of letters, which had been torn up and thrown away, figure in the suit for maintenance brought in the court of chancery by Mrs. Amanda H. Hendrickson, of Allentown, Monmouth county, against her husband, Hires G. Hendrickson. The letters were found by the wife and pieced together.
The woman charges her husband with infidelity with a widow named Nelson in Allentown, and gives Miss May Pones, whom Hendrickson employed as a bookkeeper, as the other co-respondent.

New Castle, Del., Aug. 21.—Five members of the Moseley family celebrated their common birthday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Mose-ley on the Andrews farm, near Rose Hill, north of this city.
They were Mrs. Rebecca Pennock, aged 75 years, mother of Mrs. Mose-ley; three children of the latter, Mrs.
Charles R. Klund, aged twenty-seven years; Miss Madeline G. Moseley, aged twenty-one years, and Oscar P.
Moseley, aged twenty-one years, and Willard E. Pruitt, aged twenty years.
A dinner was served and each person received numerous presents.

Trolley Kills Ice Wagon Driver.
Centerville, Pa., Aug. 21.—Caught in the tracks of the Ashland, Shamokin and Mount Carmel trolley line below town, a loaded ice wagon, driven by Phelix Marchinsky, was struck by a crowded eastbound trolley car. The wagon was wrecked, both horses were killed and Marchinsky was ground to death.

ARE DUE TODAY
Six Other Coatesville Lynchers to Be Taken Into Custody.
CURIOUS THROUGH THE TOWN
Crowd of 10,000 Persons Visit Scene of Coatesville Lynching In the Search for Relics of the Grievous Tragedy.
Coatesville, Pa., Aug. 21.—At least ten thousand people Sunday visited the scene of the lynching of the colored man "Zack" Walker, the slayer of Policeman Edgar Rice, and the charred pieces of fence rail which had not been entirely burned by the fire were cut into bits with penknives and carried away as souvenirs.
Other than this, the town was quiet.
With the exception of Rev. W. H.
Weatherly, colored pastor of a little Baptist church in the east end of the town, not a minister who preached in this place or vicinity gave utterance to an opinion on the subject of the lynching. Several who were interviewed stated that they felt that the people felt the shame of it sorely enough at this time.
The full confession of Joseph Schwartz has cleared the way for a final clean up by District Attorney Gawthron. As the result of one week's work by this official there are now lodged in the West Chester jail seven men charged with murder. Three men have incriminated themselves and each other by their confessions and statements.
Up to date, under charges of murder are: Captain Al Berry, Joseph Schwartz, Joseph Schofield, Chester
Bostick, William A. Gilbert, Norman Price, George Stahl.
Joseph Stahl, fresh from his work at the rolling mill, was taken before the district attorney, Sheriff Golder and Assistant District Attorney Sproat and made a full confession that verifies what has already been told the authorities by the other prisoners.
More Arrests Today.
It is said that the three men arrested Saturday night have given information to District Attorney Gaw-thron which will lead to the arrest of six others who are said to have been leaders of the mob. These arrests will probably take place today.
It is the opinion here that the problem cannot be carried on as strenuously this week, because the district attorney will have to make preparation for the August term of criminal court at West Chester, which opens a week from today. The investigation will continue until about Wednesday, and then will be curtailed until after the session of the criminal court. None of the lynching cases will get before the grand jury until the October session.
Captain Cecil Wilhelm, of the state contabulary, was in Philadelphia con-fering with some state officials. He returned to Coatesville, but said that he had nothing to give out at this time.
In his sermon Rev. Mr. Weatherly denounced the slaying of Rice and the lynching of Walker and drew therefrom a lesson for his congregation. He said that he entertained no bitterness against any one, but declared that the guilty should be punished for the good of the town.
The thousands of people who visited the scene of the lynching came away disappointed. With the exception of blackened grass and charred rails there was nothing to show that anything had ever taken place there.
When the charred pieces of rails had been exhausted, the souvenir hunters started to chip pieces off the nearby fences with their knives until a considerable amount of the fence had been cut away.
The souvenir hunters came from all over the country by train, trolley, automobile and team. Parties motored from Philadelphia and other points.
License tags showed that some came from nearby states.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS
Jane Herven, the only entrant at Etampes, France, was awarded the cup offered for the competition of women aviators. She covered sixty-three miles in 105 minutes.
A few hours in a cell caused J. W.
Holman, a Lancaster, Pa., business man, who refused the offers of friends to go on his bond on an assault and battery charge, to change his mind, and $2000 bail was entered.
Philip Traglana, of North East, Md., an employee of the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington railroad, died in the Union hospital at Elkton of lockjaw, the result of being struck by a flying spike on the hand some time ago.

be placed in the coaches of the Panama railroad.
Sitting on a porch in a heavy thunderstorm near Georgetown, Del., Mrs.
Mary Coard, of Overbrook, was stunned and is now in a serious condition. The bolt struck a tree in the yard, then struck the woman, burning part of her hair away from her head, running down her breast and ripping the clothes from her and left her at the ankle. It left a burnt streak on her body.
Camio Luciano, nineteen years old, who is charged with cutting Tony Foniatos' throat, while his brother, Jacob Luciano, held a revolver at the victim's head, was captured by Constable Daniel Small at Pottsville, Pa.
The affair occurred one month ago at the home of the Foniatos at Stowe, when he refused to give his assailants a bottle of beer. Jacob Luciano is still a fugitive.

A JOINT RESOLUTION
Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, so as to consolidate the courts of common pleas of Allegheny County.
Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania be and the same is hereby proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:—
That section six of article five be amended, by striking out the said section, and inserting in place thereof the following:
Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district courts and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this Constitution or by law, shall be in Philadelphia vested in five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four and number five, but the number of said courts may be by law increased, from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any court where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased, from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three, such three judges shall compose a distinct and separate court as aforesaid, which shall be numbered as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of the said court, and the several courts shall distribute the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by rules of court, and each court, to which any suit shall be thus assigned, shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.
In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas, composed of all the judges in commission in said county. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law. The present judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be by law increased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption.

Number Two.
A JOINT RESOLUTION
Proposing an amendment to section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.
Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:— Amendment to Article Nine, Section Eight.
Section 8. The debt of any county,
city, borough, township, school district,
or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation," so as to read as follows:—
Section 8. The debt of any county,
city, borough, township, school district,
or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall
never exceed seven per centum upon the
assessed value of the taxable property

assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such a manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of
which now exceeds seven per centum of
such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three
per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land, or the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to be-

MY AEROPLANE ADVENTURES

By J. ARMSTRONG DREXEL

VI.—When a Man Takes to Flying

[Copyright, 1911, by Henry M. Neely. Copyright in Great Britain and Canada. All rights reserved.]

WHEN a man takes to flying he enters upon a career which is the most troublesome and yet the most fascinating that has ever been opened up for human beings. He invades a realm for which nature never intended him. All of his instincts teach him that to ascend high above the earth is to court death and that to trust himself to so flimsy and so breakable a thing as an aeroplane is to go to the utter extreme of recklessness and daring.

A circle to the left, and almost before I knew it I was back at my starting place and had stopped the engine.

Then Grahame-White explained to me that a Bleriot always has a tendency to steer to the left when it is running along the ground. This is due to the downward thrust of the propeller and the greater effect of the air pressure on one side than another. After being instructed to steer with my foot lever until I got going at full speed I started off again. This time at the first sign of a pull toward the left I thrust out my right foot and headed her the other way. Once more I had to do this, and then I attained full speed and was able to keep on in a straight line down the course.

Feeling with the utmost confidence that the tying of the wheel would make it impossible for me to rise from the ground, I had not the slightest nervousness as to the outcome of my journey, and I thoroughly enjoyed my dash down that mile of level earth at a rate of about thirty or thirty-five miles an hour. But again I was destined to a great surprise—a surprise had been instructed to do to come down, and a few moments thereafter I landed as lightly as a bird, feeling that my first flight had indeed been a triumph unmarred in any way and entirely disproving the discouraging things I had heard about the difficulties of learning to fly.

I landed with the wind and going at a speed well up between fifty and sixty miles an hour, and not twenty feet from where I touched the ground was a high fence. Into this I crashed at full speed. I felt a sudden jar and heard the loud noises of splintering wood all about me—so loud indeed that I felt that the heavens were tumbling about my ears. Then I felt another jar as I fell to the earth, and when I had recovered my senses sufficiently to examine the wreck I found that there was not much left except the seat and me. For the seat I had no very high regard, but I was mighty glad and grateful to find that I was able to get up and walk about with only a score or so of sore spots distributed over my body.

I must have been an awful sight to behold. From the very beginning of my flight, unaccustomed as I was to hurrying at such a rate through the air, the wind had lashed my eyes as though with whiplashes, and my eyeballs had become sore and inflamed. The oil from the engine had been dashed back on to my face, and there it had mingled in grimy brotherhood with the water that streamed from my eyes under the lashing of the wind.

It took me a long while to get used to this pain caused in the eyes by the rushing air, and during the next few weeks when I began flying with the Gnome engine I got a double dose of lubricating oil in my hair, all over my face and down my neck.

I flew with the first Gnome engine ever put upon the market. It was a short time after I had taken my initial lessons from Grahame-White and when I was in the school run by Bleriot himself at Pau.

It was a vastly different matter to start a flight with this new motor, instead of having an easy run along the ground and lifting at a speed of about thirty miles an hour, as I had done with Grahame-White's Anzani. I now found myself rushing along at nearly fifty miles an hour almost as soon as the mechanics let go of the machine. Here my poor eyes got a lashing which I shall never forget and which daily nearly blinded me until I became accustomed to flying at this tremendous speed.

I Go In For High Flying.

From the very first the one phase of aviation that held a really powerful fascination for me was altitude climbing. No sooner had I tried my fledgling wings than I looked longingly into the upper air and wanted to climb as far as my engine would carry me.

On the third day of my practice at the Bleriot school with the Gnome motor I decided to take affairs into my own hands, and disregarding all the advice that had been given me, I headed the machine upward and climbed close to a thousand feet, when suddenly, one after the other, three of my cylinders went bad, and I was forced to coast down to the ground again. It was the result of some minor defect in the new engine, and when it was repaired I took my equipment with me to my place at Beaulieu, in England, there to practice a bit and then try for my certificate, or aviator's license.

I became proficient in a remarkably short time. When I felt that I could pass inspection I had the officials of the English Aero club appoint a day when I should try for my certificate. An official came up to wish me good luck just before my machine started the propeller, and I asked:

"What is the English height record?"

"Bouhan has it," he replied. "It is 77 feet."

"Well," I said as I turned away, "I'm going to try to beat that." I started off in wide circles, and the first two times I passed over the heads of the officials I saw one of them wave his hand, the signal for a naval officer with a sextant to take my height. Higher and higher I went, but I was unprepared to see the flag wave after that, and I came to earth again.

"How much did I do?" I asked the navy officer.

"Ten hundred and forty feet," he replied. "You have broken the English altitude record, and I believe you went twice as high as that, but unfortunately the man who was to signal me with the flag got mixed up somehow, and I only took your height on your first and second circles."

This love of altitude work has been my constant passion ever since. Merely to get into an aeroplane and fly no longer has any fascination for me. I want to climb. I want to keep going up until I am sure that I am higher than any man has ever been before in a heavier than air machine, and though not long ago I almost determined to give up aeroplane work I now feel the desire growing stronger upon me, and it would not surprise me if I tried for another record soon.

Eternal practice and unending patience are necessary when the average man takes to flying. Day after day he must go out "grass cutting," as they say at Mineola when the novices roll along the ground or take only short, low jumps into the air. This is not exciting and it will seem to the would-be pilot that he is making slow progress, but, as a matter of fact, he is training his mind and his muscles to work in unison and by instinct, and this faculty alone is worth all the trouble it takes to acquire it once it is called into play in a bad spot high above the earth. It may not be needed very often, but like a gun in Texas, when it is needed it is needed badly.

and we need merely do as our predecessors did. But those first men dashed absolutely into the unknown.

Not long ago Captain Thomas S. Baldwin, the veteran balloonist and aviator, investigated the subject and as a result he declared that every beginner in aviation smashes up $2,000 worth of property before he can get a certificate of competence, and one can easily imagine the risk to life and limb that is constantly run while these fledgling flights are being made. In my own case, when the mechanics let go of my machine for my first flight, it looked as though I were going to disprove this statement, but it was not many seconds thereafter before I showed that, if anything, Captain Baldwin's estimate of cost was altogether too low.

My First Lesson In Flying.

My first lesson was taken from Grahame-White at Pau. His Bleriot was equipped with an Anzani motor, for it was before the Gnome had been placed upon the market, and it was probably fortunate for me that my machine did not have the greater horsepower developed by the later type of engine.

I learned as did most of the men who have made a success of the work. The controls were explained to me, and I made a thorough study of the theory on which the machine operates. I knew what to do to make the mono plane go up or down or steer to right or left, and I knew how to warp the wings to preserve my balance—that is, I knew them in theory, though I had, of course, never tried in practice.

"Now," said Grahame-White, "you are to take a run along the ground and see if you can steer the machine. The wheel is tied so that you cannot go up into the air, and all you are to do is to keep going straight and shut off your engine when you come to the end of the field."

that taught me to fly much as one teaches a boy to swim by throwing him in the water and letting him strike out for himself.

I Find Myself In the Air.

At the end of the mile straight away on the course was a road crossing the field at right angles and at an elevation of several feet above the rest of the ground. Without thinking much about this road and feeling perhaps that so slight and so gradual an embankment was not a serious obstacle I went dashing merrily on and up the slope toward the highway.

A few minutes later my utter astonishment may be imagined when I suddenly realized that I was not upon the ground at all, but was sailing gracefully through the air at a height of about eighty feet above the earth. The explanation is simple enough to me now. When the front of my machine took the slope of the embankment it rose until the slant of my planes was exactly what was necessary for the impact of the air to get under them and give the required lifting power for the machine to fly. In other words, the embankment did for me what I might have done for myself had my wheel not been tied and I sent my machine upward into the air as gracefully and as easily as though it had been purposely operated for that result by the most skilled aviator.

For the first few minutes my astonishment was so great that I did absolutely nothing but sit motionless and let the Bleriot take its course. Then I pulled myself together and tried to remember everything that Grahame-White had told me about how to manage the machine.

My one thought was to get back to my starting point, for by this time I had gone beyond the smooth fields and was flying over rough and dangerous ground that would have meant instant disaster had I landed upon it. So, in order to turn, I thrust my left foot gently forward, and I shall never forget my thrill of triumph as I found the Bleriot gradually sweeping about in a wide and easy circle to the left that soon brought me again back to the smooth fields and facing toward the direction from which I had come.

An Unexpected Disaster.

As I approached my starting place I shoved my wheel gently forward, as I

BEATTIE MURDER TRIAL BEGINS

His Fight For Life Now on at Chesterfield Court House.

ACCUSED OF MURDERING WIFE

Plan of Defense an Enigma, But Prisoner's counsel Hopes to Create a "Reasonable Doubt" on Which to Base an Appeal in Case of Conviction.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21.—When Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., went on trial for his life, there began in the old courthouse of Chesterfield a trial which will be a fight all along the line, with the shrewdest legal wits in the Old Dominion engaging in a contest which for keenness, for alert thrust and parry, for wit and repartee will rival any murder trial ever held in the country.

There started a thrilling drama, with its denouement the life or death of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., a drama because interest will steadily mount until the climax comes, the verdict of the jury; a drama because there will be present that collision of character and will which is the essence of true drama.

Yet it will be no make-believe affair of the stage, but a real-life, awesomely earnest and intense battle, with a young man's life at the stake. In probably a day or two Louis O. Wendeburg, special prosecutor, will make his opening statement to the jury, and will narrate to that body the story of a crime which has made the civilized world shudder—a crime, Mr. Wendeburg called the other day "of monstrous wickedness, of utter cruelty."

The commonwealth will tell the jury of a murder so brutal that it has made many ask if this tale of barbaric cruelty can be true; if it is so that a young wife and mother was thus wantonly done to death by one sworn to love and cherish and protect her, by him, of all others, from whom the utter opposite of what the state says happened ought to have been expected.

The commonwealth will huri at Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., in a day or two, evidence which, it says, will convince the most skeptical. The commonwealth will show:

That Beattie quarreled violently with his wife during the latter part of June and early July.

shotgun and three shells for him only three days before the murder.

That Beattie was two hours late in keeping his appointment with his wife at the Thomas Owen home, and that he was seen at the scene of the crime during this time, preparing for the murder.

That tracks led from the blood spot in the road to a stump, tracks corresponding to Beattie's footprints, tracks leading from the side of the automobile where Beattie says he did not stand.

That the bloodhounds given the scent led to this stump and back again to the car, and would take no other trail.

That Beattie was seen bending over his car by young Richmond merry-makers returning from a dance at Banair, and on being offered assistance by them refused it.

That Beattie lied about his wife's not getting out of the car, lied about his whereabouts during the early part of the evening; lied about a number of other vital points.

That his story of the "tall-bearded man" is discredited by the fact that, although the whole countryside was scoured and raked fine within a very few hours, not a trace of the man was discovered.

That Beattie had only a slight scratch on his nose from the crashing blow which he says the "tall-bearded man" gave him with the butt end of the shotgun.

That Beattie, not a powerful man, wrestled, he says, the gun from this six feet four stranger, but then paid no further attention to him, and did not try to strike him with the gun.

That Beattie was not really upset at all when he came in with his wife's dead body in his arms, and that he has been cool, calm and collected ever since, including the time of the inquest, when Paul Beattie was giving his most damaging testimony.

That at the funeral he was the coolest person present.

That the bones of Mrs. Beattie's head above the eye were crushed in by what must have been a terrific blow, while Beattie has said his wife was simply shot and not struck.

That Mrs. Beattie's body must have lain in the road (Beattie denies that she left the car) because her hair was found full of dirt.

These facts and others the commonwealth will tell the jury it can prove. The defense is still an enigma. The best guesses is that Beattie's shrewd lawyers hope to discredit Paul Beattie's testimony, and to raise a reasonable doubt that Henry is guilty in the minds of one or more jurors, thus getting a disagreement. Failing this, the defense hopes for a new trial. One of the best lawyers in Virginia, Hill Carter, will cause an unprecedented number of exceptions to be taken as the basis of the appeal, if one is necessary.

WOMAN MAYOR IN REFORM WAR TO STAY

Hunnell, Kan., Executive Decries She Won't Resign.

Hunnell, Kan., Aug. 21.—Mrs. Ella Wilson, mayor of this place, is angered by reports published in New York that she is going to resign because the ten men councilmen here resist her authority. She has written the National Suffrage Association of New York as follows:

"The reports recently published in the New York papers about me and my attitude toward the work in which I am engaged are unjust and absolutely false. They quote me as saying, 'Politics is not a woman's game.' I have never made such a statement, nor have I arrived at that conclusion. 'As to my resigning, I have no intention of so doing; neither have I any desire for such action. I am in a fight for higher morals and a better city government, and I am confident that I shall be victorious. The men of Hunnwell who belong to the whisky and gambling element are opposing me in every possible way, but I shall stick to my post and earnestly endeavor to accomplish some reforms that are greatly needed here.'"

GASOLINE BURNS TRAIN

Tank Explodes, Fortunately at Station, and Passengers Escape.

Easton, Pa., Aug. 21.—Just as a passenger train on the Lehigh Valley railroad from Buffalo to New York arrived at the station here, a gasoline tank under the third coach exploded, and in almost an instant the car was enveloped in flames.

Passengers barely escaped with their lives by crawling out of the windows as the flames spread to the first and second coaches. All three cars were detached from the train and run into a cut, where they were destroyed before the Easton fire department could reach the scene and check the flames.

HUNTED BY A WALRUS.

The Big Bull Got Quite Sociable Before He Was Done For.

In George Hornup's "A Tenderfoot With Peary" appears an exciting incident of walrus hunting. During a raid upon a herd of fifty walrus asleep on a pan "it was blowing some, and the choppy waves made the shooting look as if the guns had spiral barrels." The ineffective target practice produced these hair raising developments a few seconds later: "Suddenly a giant bull rose out of the water just along side of Wesharkoups. He threw his harpoon, but as the barb came off he might as well have heaved a lead pencil. The walrus gave a derisive grunt, dived, and a second later shot out of the water on the other side, deluged us with liquid and came down slap bang on the gunwale of the boat opposite me.

"By this time Wesharkoups was high in the air and out for an altitude record. Instead of throwing his harpoon he threw his soul into his yells and just spat in the brute's face. The other huskies were trying to back water or hit him over the head with the oars, nearly sideswiping me and incidentally short circuiting their cussing at Wesharkoups. The walrus and everything is general.

"All this time the walrus was sitting alongside of me, asking if there were any more at home like Wesharkoups. It was easier to pull his whiskers or smash his mug with my fist than shoot. If I held the gun to my shoulder the muzzle would stick beyond his head, so, bring from the hip, I gave him the enfante cordiale."

Horses can be kept the most economically in good flesh. A fat horse will eat less than a poor one. The horse with his bones covered with good hard flesh and muscle is stronger. It does not pay to keep thin, weak horses that cannot do a good day's work every day when it costs no more to keep good ones.

A CARD PROPOSAL

By GROVE J. GRIFFIN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

They were sitting on the porch overlooking the ocean. Waves were rolling in, breaking and sliding the foam glistening in the sunlight upon the beach. A table stood between them, and on it a pack of cards.

"Shall I tell your fortune?" he asked. "If you like."

He took up the cards and shuffled them. She asked him by what method he would tell her fortune, and he said he learned it from an Indian princess. The truth is he knew no fortune telling method. He intended to propose to her through the cards and to make up the process as he proceeded. He began to throw them off on to the table face up. The first turned was the two of hearts.

"You have two lovers," he said. She knew that she had three, not counting several uncertainties. He knew that he had one rival whom he feared. He went on throwing off the cards till he came to the knave of diamonds.

"That's the principal lover," he said. "He has the inside track. No one else has much of a show. He is tall, good looking and has an excellent opinion of himself. Just the man for a heart smasher. And these diamonds falling so near together indicate that he is the favorite with—Hello! The queen of hearts! That's you. The knave of diamonds and the queen of hearts are connected by a lot of small cards of the same suit, showing very plainly that there is an affair between them."

"How old is the knave of diamonds?" she asked.

"Thirty-five or thirty-six."

"Can't a younger lover be got out of the cards?"

"Well, here's the knave of clubs. He's one of the kind who uses a big stick for accomplishing anything he undertakes. Nothing suave or polite about him."

"I should think he would have a better chance than the other. I like a helter skelter kind of man; most girls do."

"Well, this knave of clubs is not exactly bad; but, on the other hand, he isn't very good. He's neither one nor the other. He adores you, though, and if it turns out that the knave of diamonds gets you the knave of clubs will have the breath knocked out of him."

"That would be too bad, wouldn't it? Who's that queen of spades you just turned?"

"That? That's a rival you have for the favor of the knave of diamonds."

"Haven't I a rival for the knave of clubs?"

She asked this in a subdued voice. "Not a rival. He loves you alone. But these low diamonds coming in between the knave of diamonds and the queen of spades indicates that she has considerable hold upon him."

"She may have him for all I care."

"Here comes the king of hearts. He stands for your papa. Low diamonds following him so closely indicate that the knave of clubs is your father's favorite. When the queen of hearts comes out we shall see whom she favors. She's your mother, you know."

"I thought I was the queen of hearts."

"So you are! I forgot that. Well, we'll call your mother the ace of hearts. That's a good idea; the ace is the highest of its suit, and whomsoever your mother favors—you consenting—takes the trick."

"I think that whoever I favor will take the trick."

"Right you are. These clubs—the two, three and four—indicate that the knave of clubs has loved you four years. Ever since that summer at—"

She was supporting her head with her hands, her elbows resting on the table. At this point she shaded her face with her fingers, so that he saw very little of it. He couldn't very well tell her, even through the cards, that he had loved her longer than that, for he hadn't known her longer. She was waiting for him to name the place where she had met the knave of clubs, but he didn't.

"He was walking on the beach with a couple of other knaves. She was coming toward him with three other queens, walking two and two."

"I acted very silly on that occasion."

"What did you do?"

"I giggled."

"And we were trying to get up a flirtation."

"But we are getting away from the fortune telling. How could the knave of clubs have loved the queen of hearts ever since that day? There were three other queens with her."

"They were not his queens. None of them was. His queen was the queen of hearts. He loved her the moment he saw her and has never swerved from that love since."

After this they talked so low that a couple lying under the porch in the sand could hear no more. Two young men passing on the beach surprised one couple above sitting hand and hand over a table, peering into each other's eyes, and another couple underneath on the sand, who started on being caught eavesdropping.

"This place is full of chaps and girls," remarked one of the passers.

"Yes," said the other, "it's only another fellow and another girl."

RUNK & PECKMAN'S REALTY REPORT

When you buy a property through us you get it at its actual value. The owners list with us and pay us a reasonable commission for our services in order to make quick sales. You do not have to pay more because it is placed in our hands for sale. We see that you get a good deed and clear title. This is worth something. You do not want to buy a property and later find unpaid taxes, judgments or other liens against it. We will not try to sell you a property for more than it is worth or one that you do not want. Our business is to show you something that will suit and then get buyer and seller together on price and terms. If we cannot do this you are at liberty to buy elsewhere. That is fair isn't it? Below we give a few properties that have been listed with us since last week.

80 Acres 1 mile from Benders church, new frame house and good barn, running water, $1000 worth of timber on place, a bargain at $2850.

40 Acres, land without buildings, along Mummasburg road. 20 acres timber balance good farm land, $800.

15 Acres with good buildings 2 miles from Gettysburg, a fine place for poultry and truck $1300.

7 Room frame house, stable and large lot in Mummasburg $800.
